

— PROOF OF WORK

WE DON'T SELL ATTENTION. WE BUILD THE MACHINE THAT TURNS IT INTO REVENUE.

Four companies. Four different problems — a launch with no audience, a brand with a trust problem, a broker with no accountable distribution, and a platform buying traffic that wasn't converting. One growth system, applied four times, with the receipts to prove it.

— THE PORTFOLIO

FOUR CASE FILES. ONE SYSTEM, STRESS-TESTED.

Every campaign below was built on the same operating layer — qualified attention, product understanding, trust, action, measurable acquisition. What changes is the problem it's aimed at.

001	WEALTH AURA FUNDED	Built the hype before the doors even opened.
002	FXC FUNDED	Turned a scam narrative into 381 paying customers.
003	ATS FUNDED	Made distribution accountable, down to the cent.
004	TRADERLAB	Rebuilt the acquisition engine in 90 days, across 10 countries.

— 01 — THE PROBLEM

THE LAUNCH HADN'T HAPPENED YET. THE AUDIENCE ALREADY HAD TO.

A great launch day means nothing to an empty room. Wealth Aura Funded came to 02 Growth Lab before the platform was even public — no brand recognition, no community, no proof it worked yet. The brief was simple to say and hard to do: fill the "coming soon" waitlist with people who would actually show up on day one.

There was no product to point at yet — only a promise. So the campaign couldn't sell features. It had to sell anticipation, using the one asset that travels faster than any ad: a trusted network of voices telling people something worth waiting for was on its way.

— 02 — THE BRIEF, IN ONE MESSAGE

TELEGRAM — WEALTH AURA FUNDED <> 02 GROWTH LAB — FIRST CONTACT

"Do you still have your network of influencers?"

— the entire brief, in one line. No deck, no RFP — just a founder who already knew exactly what he needed to borrow: reach he could trust.

— 03 — THE EXECUTION

WE DIDN'T ANNOUNCE THE LAUNCH. WE MOBILIZED FOR IT.

The network was briefed on message before it was briefed on schedule: what Wealth Aura Funded was, why it mattered, and what "worth waiting for" actually meant for a prop-trading audience. Then the network moved — seeding anticipation content pointed at one destination: the waitlist.

— 04 — THE RESULT

Pre-launch campaigns don't get judged by a dashboard — they get judged by whether the client keeps the relationship going after the first invoice. Wealth Aura Funded's own words did the judging: the pre-launch outreach was called a success, and the founder came back asking whether 02 Growth Lab could run the full launch campaign "on a larger scale." That request was followed by an introduction into a bigger partner network — REF+, a platform with 20,000+ users — to fold 02 Growth Lab's influencer network into corporate promotional packages.

"Brief on the pre-launch outreach — glad it was a success. I would like to know if we are working together on the launch campaign on a larger scale. If there's an opening, let me know."

— the client asking to buy more, not being sold more.

THE BEST PROOF OF A CAMPAIGN ISN'T THE REPORT.
IT'S THE CLIENT COMING BACK TO ASK FOR A BIGGER ONE.

— 01 — THE PROBLEM

THE PRODUCT WAS FINE. THE INTERNET HAD ALREADY DECIDED IT WASN'T.

FXC Funded didn't have a conversion problem. They had a reputation problem — the kind that spreads faster than any media budget can outrun. Prospective traders were finding "scam" accusations before they ever found the product itself.

Standard growth playbooks — media buys, generic affiliates — don't fix a trust deficit. They just put more people in front of the same doubt. FXC needed something else: a campaign engineered to answer the accusation directly, not talk around it.

— 02 — WHY THE USUAL PLAYBOOK WASN'T ENOUGH

FXC Funded had been burned before — partners paid upfront who delivered nothing, the exact pattern that fuels distrust in this space in the first place. That history is why the brief wasn't "get us clicks." It was "give us a reason to be believed" — and why the commercial terms that followed were built around delivered performance, not promises.

— 03 — THE SYSTEM: AN ENGINEERED TRUST CAMPAIGN

NOT LOUDER MARKETING. EVIDENCE MARKETING.

Instead of a standard affiliate push, 02 Growth Lab engineered a trust-first campaign — creators and content built specifically to meet the scam narrative head-on, put real usage and real payouts in front of a skeptical audience, and rebuild credibility one verified interaction at a time. The compensation structure mirrored the strategy: staged, performance-linked payouts tied to delivered volume rather than a flat fee up front — the opposite of the pattern that had burned FXC before.

"This one actually closed and performed well — so now I have an even more positive feeling... we can stretch the compensation after the first delivered volume."
— FXC Funded, confirming the campaign delivered before agreeing to scale it.

— 04 — THE RESULTS

Skepticism converted into a paying customer base — tracked, confirmed, and withdrawable, not projected.

THE JOB ISN'T MORE ATTENTION. IT'S MOVING ATTENTION CLOSER TO ACTION.

ATS Funded didn't bring 02 Growth Lab in as a media vendor — they made us the exclusive partner running distribution: a $1,500/mo retainer, 10 × $25K two-step accounts a month, and a 10% referral commission, built around one requirement — run the full launch campaign, source and manage the creators, and make every click accountable.

WE DIDN'T BUY MORE TRAFFIC. WE FIXED THE SYSTEM.

TraderLab came to 02 Growth Lab having spent €1,000 to get back €23 — awareness and followers, but never the correct audience. Before scaling a single dollar of spend, 02 Growth Lab rebuilt the brand, fixed a desktop-first platform for a mobile-first trader base, and replaced rogue affiliates with a vetted, performance-tracked creator network.

"We didn't create a campaign. We rebuilt the acquisition engine."

Full case file — including the founder's original diagnosis, the brand transformation, and the device-level data that called mobile-first before the numbers confirmed it — is available as a standalone document.

— THE PORTFOLIO, BY THE NUMBERS

FOUR PROBLEMS. ONE SYSTEM. THE SAME RESULT.

A pre-launch with no audience. A brand fighting a scam narrative. A broker with unaccountable distribution. A platform buying traffic that didn't convert. Different verticals, different starting points — the same operating layer turned attention into action every time.
